Address Book Description: You are being invited to a connection party. It is a gathering of friends, family, acquaintances, or random people you know from the Internet. Your goal is to have everyone in attendance on the same screen, so you can share different material, such as videos, photos, games, documents or webpages. This could even be a get-together to watch a TV program or a shared game. This kind of event is known as a social network party. How does it work? All you need to get started is a place to host the party. This could be your PC, tablet, phone, or any other computer. You can even go to a local bar or restaurant and host the party there. The host controls the connection party by controlling the presentation, sharing material, and more. A server provides a website to connect your devices. You are asked to share your connection page with your guests and invite them to join. All device users that connect to the website will be sent to your connection page. They will now have your laptop to share and display different media or play a game. It is the host's job to secure all the connections to a single point. All devices connect to the
